

Carefully consider each of the statements then tick the appropriate box in the table below

		Mostly agree	Mostly disagree
1	Only a fool would correct a boss's mistake		1
2	If I have confidential information, I release it to my advantage		1
3	I would not hire a subordinate with more formal education than I have		1
4	If I do someone a favour I intend to cash-in on it		1
5	I would say nice things about a rival in order to get that person transferred from my department		1
6	I try to become friends with powerful people		1
7	I would take credit for the work of others – they would do it to me anyway		1
8	I would help my boss if he/she needed some help at home not related to work	1
9	I always laugh at my bosses jokes even when they aren't funny		1
10	I always attend company social events outside work even if I have something much better to do		1
11	If I knew a senior person was stealing money I would use the knowledge to get favours from him/her		1
12	I would find out my bosses political views before discussing politics with him/her	1
13	Using group emails to show up others' mistakes is a good idea		1
14	If I want a co-worker to do something I would say, 'If you don't get this done then the boss will be unhappy'		1
15	I would invite my boss to a party at my house even if I don't like him/her		1
16	I try to have lunch with influential people regularly		1
17	Doing unethical things is ok if you don't get caught		1
18	It is very important for a person to gain and hold power	1
19	I would love to have a library named after me		1
20	Watching movies about job politics is as much fun as watching an adventure movie		1

Each response of 'Mostly agree' is worth 1 point. Total your points and plot the results on the politics and power continuum below

Note: This instrument is a guide only. It is not a validated personality instrument

Adapted from:

DuBrin, A. (1978). Human relations: A job oriented approach. Reston Publishing, Reston, VA.